THE AVENUE, N11 Planning applications up to Mar 2014 (except 1967-1998)

History

In the north half of the parish only the eastern section from the Avenue to Russell Lane, dominated by council estates, is like the Freehold. Although parts remain waste, the Avenue has been rebuilt and the terraces in East and Oakleigh roads are being cleared (Victoria County History 15)

At the northern end of New Southgate (the name replaced Betstile) the streets around The Avenue were described as one of the roughest north London suburbs in 1891. (Godfrey Old Ordnance Survey Map Friern Barnet & New Southgate 1898)

The nearby Avenue district was cleared after 1969; by 1975, when there were still vacant patches, the Avenue itself, Stewards Holte Walk, Coppies Grove, and flats called Holmesdale and Stanhope had been built. (Victoria County History page 14)

4 Oct 1965. ...Friern Barnet (The Avenue) Compulsory Purchase Order 1963 (Barnet Council Minutes 4 Oct 1965)

4 Oct 1965. The Borough Architect reported that the former Friern Barnet Urban District Council had decided that the redevelopment of The Avenue be carried out in four phases, the first of which had been completed in May 1965, the contract having been negotiated with Gregory Housing Ltd on behalf of their associated building company, Drury Construction Ltd and that as requested the company now submitted a scheme for a fixed price tender for Phase II on an area of 2.075 acres. The tender amounted to £188,737 to provide 72 units, garages and associated works. Resolved that i) the scheme and tender submitted by Gregory Housing Ltd be not accepted and ii) that the area of land for Phase II be increased to include numbers 18-28 The Avenue and 39-59 Oakleigh Road South/ The Borough Architect be instructed to negotiate with Bernard Sunley & Sons Ltd for carrying out the development by the "Allbetong" Industrial Building System and report to the Committee (Barnet Council Minutes 4 Oct 1965)

11 Oct 1965. Development Plan Phase II. Demolition of properties and construction of roads. Edgware Construction Co had recently executed a contract for works for £5928. 6s 0d. Contractors given an order to commence demolition of empty properties (Barnet Council Minutes 11 Oct 1965)

No 2. The article by Harry Gould in our issue number 27 of September 2006 prompted Pam Brown to write to us with some recollections of her family, who also lived in New Southgate The blacksmith mentioned by Harry was Pam's grandfather, Frank Bray, or maybe her great grandfather, William Edwin. The Bray family were wheelwrights and blacksmiths and their workshop was in The Mews, a small turning at the Friern Barnet Lane end of The Avenue, on the western side. William Edwin had come to The Avenue in July 1881 and the family had lived at number 2 The Avenue until 1963. William Edwin died in 1951 and the blacksmiths closed shortly after. The following article in the 21 August 1953 issue of Muswell Hill Record vividly recalls the event: "Behind green shutters at The Avenue, Friern Barnet, where once horses stamped and fretted, where the ring of hammer on anvil sounded, where clouds of pungent smoke poured from the horses' hooves and red sparks spluttered on cold steel, is now a vast armada of machinery. The old chimney remains, banked up with coal, as in days gone by, iron rings for the bridles are still fixed in the walls, but the place itself is now a springsmith's workshop. Above the old forge live two white-haired sisters – Miss Eleanor Bray and Miss Annie Elizabeth Bray, whose father took over the business in July, 1882, when the younger of the two sisters was seven months old. For a time, William Edwin Bray was the manager of the forge, and then he became the owner. When he died, horses were still coming to be shod from as far away as Finchley, Palmers Green and Wood Green, and the business was taken over by his eldest son, and in later years by his second son, but with the years there was less trade and less iron to make the shoes. Two years ago the last of the brothers died, but the two sisters still live where they always lived – above the green-shuttered forge. Soon it may be theirs no longer. They already rent the forge and may make negotiations for the sale."

No 21. 13 Sep 1965. A two-storey inner terrace house with a site area of .03 of an acre and subject to an existing decontrolled tenancy. The purchase price is £1450, the Council to pay the vendor's surveyor's fees of £43 1s 0d and their proper legal costs (Barnet Council Minutes 13 Sep 1965)

No 23. 20 Jul 1965. The Borough Estates Officer informed us that the following instructions given to the District Valuer under the Friern Barnet (The Avenue) Compulsory Purchase Order 1963 for the acquisition of properties in this area, agreement had been reached regarding acquisition of the above property, which was a two-storey inner-terrace house with a site area of approx 1300 sq feet. The nature of the interest to be acquired was freehold with vacant possession, and provisional terms of acquisition of the above property included a purchase price of £1600 and payment, by the Council, of the vendor's solicitor's fees of £44 2s 0d and their proper legal costs. It was proposed to charge the expenditure involved against the bulk loan sanction of £61,912 received by the Friern Barnet Urban District Council on 25 August 1964. No estimated life of the building was given, as demolition was envisaged. We authorised acceptance of the arrangements set out above and instructed the Town Clerk to complete the purchase (Barnet Council Minutes 20 Jul 1965)

No 34. 1911. Herbert Henry Field, Private 4th Battalion, Middlesex Regiment, killed in action 19 August 1917, buried in Voormizeele Enclosure no 3 (Belgium). THE CRESCENT, N11 Planning applications up to My 2021

(see also BETHUNE PARK GARDEN ESTATE)

History

The land was used for controlled tipping before being covered with top soil and let out as allotments from 1926 onwards (Around Whetstone & North Finchley by John Heathfield, page 119)

In 1975...four new schools included two in Bethune Park between the Crescent and Hemington Avenue. (Victoria County History page 15)

There are houses on one side only (the other side is/are allotments), and they are therefore numbered consecutively (instead of odd numbers or even numbers). Now when our wonderful council sells off the allotments to property developers, how will they number the new houses? Could be trouble for the postman (John Donovan. Donovan's Diary 12 Oct 2003. Page 3)

Infrastructure

The council are replacing the paving stones on both sides of the road, and trying to cope with the huge magnificent Plane trees that line its northern side. They have to put tarmac instead of stones across the lumpy roots, and a line of single cobble stones instead of a kerb around the foot of each tree. The whole road is full of red and white "hurdles" barriers and fences (John Donovan FB&DLHS Nov/Dec 2001)

15 Sep 1938. Cost of making up The Crescent £2488. 9s. 11d (Friern Barnet UDC Minutes)

11 Sept 2003. The Council were digging up the 'give way' white lines (John Donovan FB&DLHS)

7 Apr 2015. The whole length of The Crescent has recently been resurfaced (David Berguer FB&DLHS)

No 2. The Crescent, which looks onto the allotments, is blessed on the western side with a long line of absolutely magnificent Plane trees. Their huge roots buckle the pavements (which the council does its best to keep flat and straight), and they aren't trimmed back as drastically as the small trees on the eastern side of the road. Many years ago, a house on the northwestern corner of The Crescent suffered severe subsidence. The house number is actually 2 Crescent Road, but the damage was at the rear of the house, in The Crescent. The house was repaired (with trenches filled in with concrete, no doubt) and seems to be fine now, but just a few yards from the damaged part of the house stood one of the above-mentioned, magnificent Planes. Sadly, the experts must have assumed that the tree was to blame for the subsidence, and it was cut down. All that remains of the tree is a patch of black asphalt on the pavement" (John Donovan, Donovan's Diary 2 Aug 2002)

No 19 Jun 1987 & 29 Oct 1987. Planning application for erection of a detached house and double garage (Barnet Council N/07707/B)

No 17. 1914. Percy Llewellyn Evans, Sergeant, 14th Battalion, Middlesex regiment, died 12 February 1917, home service, aged 30, buried in Friern Barnet churchyard. Percy was born in 1888, Clay Hill, Enfield, son of John Llewellyn and Mary Evans. His mother was a teacher and he followed her into that profession. He taught at Friern Lane (St James's) School and then at Holly Park School. He was married 11 August 1914 at the Independent Chapel, Newport, Shropshire to Evelyn Evanson, who was also a teacher at Holly Park. They lived at 17 The Crescent. Percy enlisted 1 June 1915, having previously served part time with the 20th Battalion, London regiment, Territorial Force. He died in Clare Hall Sanatorium, South Mimms. The Friern Barnet parish magazine of March 1917 reported "the death of Mr Percy Evans, Assistant Master at Holly Park School, who began work at Friern Lane. He joined the Colours, but contracted the disease that caused his death. He was a great favourite among the boys and his funeral on 13 February practically the whole school followed him to his grave." THE FREEHOLD, N10

(see also HALLIWICK MANOR ESTATE and CROMWELL ROAD, HAMPDEN ROAD, PEMBROKE ROAD, ROMAN ROAD and SYDNEY ROAD)

In 1883 the most populous and prosperous district was that of All Saints', Whetstone. Sixty-one percent of the total population, however, lived in the Freehold, Avenue and Holly Park Districts which had grown up around Colney Hatch. The working-class Freehold, so called in the late 19th century when the original ownership of the land had been forgotten, lay south of Bounds Green brook and east of Colney Hatch Lane. (Victoria County History page 7)

The principal roads of the Freehold in the south part of the parish existed by 1863, but access to Colney Hatch station was made difficult by the asylum to the north and the railway line to the east, which apparently impeded growth in 1895. A route across the railway line was not provided until the construction of the North Circular Road (Pinkham Way) after 1929 (Victoria County History page 7)

The Freehold's roads were defined in 1863, probably by the Westminster Freehold Land Society, and by 1867 they had c.130 houses, with c.1, 000 inhabitants. The influx was of labourers employed on the Alexandra Palace in Wood Green, whom the parish could not immediately absorb. In 1866 the roads, drains and water supply were considered as bad as the moral condition of the newcomers, many of whom left the district when the first palace was burnt down. Seven occupants per house was considered a moderate estimate in 1867, only two families kept servants in 1877 and there were 870 inhabitants in 174 houses in 1883. The rented houses, neglected and difficult to keep sanitary in 1893, accommodated many young, poor, and abnormally large families in 1904. As late as 1920 the inhabitants were mainly artisans and casual labourers. In spite of such expansion, land east of Colney Hatch Lane was still being farmed in 1902 and was not built on until the 1930s. (Victoria County History page 11)

1860 - 70 The area to the east of Colney Hatch Lane, where once had been Hollick Wood was laid out – Cromwell Road, Hampden Road, Pembroke Road, Sydney Road and the roads between them. The area was known as The Freehold, from the original developers. the Westminster Freehold Land Society. Development was very slow and even by 1883 there were only 870 inhabitants in 174 houses. By 1920 most of the Freehold east of Colney Hatch Lane and south of Albion Avenue farther west was covered with building (Victoria County History page 14)

1916.THE FREEHOLD TERRORS. Four boys under fourteen who appeared on Saturday at the Middlesex Sessions are known as "The Freehold Terrors". The name of the gang comes from the fact that they live on the Freehold, New Southgate. The police said the gang went about shooting chickens and horses and other animals. On one occasion they held up a boy in a field and stole a knife and a penny from him. In the shop breaking case before the Court they stole money and bought guns. It was stated that they had given a great deal of trouble to the police in North London. Their conduct was attributed to the influence of picture palaces. ||One of them, in regard to a particular offence, said: "I saw it acted on the pictures". According to a detective the police have experienced a lot of difficulty in dealing with the boys as people did not like to prosecute them because of their tender years. One had been convicted of breaking into a shop in Wood Green soe time ago and stealing guns and ammunition. Two boys were sent to a reformatory, and the others remanded until next Sessions (Barnet Press 15 Apr 1916)

In 1921 the population in the freehold was 4598 (Victoria County History)

After the First World War the council was a major builder, following a scheme of 1919 by two projects for 100 houses each in 1925 and 1926. There were two main sites, the western part of the Freehold... (Victoria County History page 14)

1926. Geo Neill, Russell Road, Friern Barnet was summoned at Highgate Police Court on Monday for using abusive and insulting language at Pembroke-road, on September 11. According to PC Dodge, he had to get out of bed because of a disturbance. He found that about 100 people had gathered in the locality, and defendant was ejected from his mother's house. Defendant denied using expressions alleged. Her had left home two or three days before. His brother challenged him to fight, went for him and he retaliated. His brother ran away and he followed. When he stopped his brother, PC Dodge was there. PC Dodge complained that owing to disturbances it was impossible to get to sleep before 1am. The Chairman had no doubt defendant was causing a disturbance, and imposed a fine of 5/- (Finchley Press 18 Sep 1926)

The Freehold estate was extended westward before 1969 by the construction of Halliwick Road, George Crescent, and the west frontage of Colney Hatch Lane, as planned in 1949 (Victoria County History page 14)

Haldane Close was constructed on the former Cromwell recreation ground by 1975 (Victoria County History page 14)

Eleven householders at the Freehold in 1871 were bricklayers, six were carpenters, three were builders, and four were plasterers (Victoria County History)

The Revd George Hennessy promoted a co-operative society in 1894 at the Freehold, which was said to have a tradition of mutual assistance and whose ratepayers' association was a formidable pressure group immediately after the formation of the local board (Victoria County History page 24)

In 1975 Friern Barnet was still divided by the asylum and a large empty tract on either side of the North Circular Road. To the south the Freehold was oriented towards Muswell Hill, with buildings along Colney Hatch Lane straggling into north Hornsey. To the east terraces were interspersed with small corner shops, little changed since 1909 and concealing factories, some of them large employers. Many slums had been replaced and the west Freehold built up, except its extreme south part and the playing fields and recreation ground in the north (Victoria County History page 15)

The Freehold estate was centred on Sydney Road and covered much of what is now Cromwell and Hampden Roads. It was laid out about 1863 by the Westminster Freehold Land Society on low, badly drained land close to Strawberry Brook. But it was built with very limited public services such as sewage disposal and road upkeep. By 1867 overcrowding was such that there were about a thousand people living in 130 houses, many of them labourers attracted by employment at Alexandra Palace. Seven inhabitants per house was about average for that year. Sydney Road has a mixture of Victorian terraced houses and semis built in the 1930s – no. 33 is the most unusual bungalow on the estate. A bus garage, opened in 1931 at 165 Sydney Road, next to the school, has been succeeded by a block of flats. A second bus depot was opened at much the same time in Hampden Road between nos 52 and 58. Haldane Close in Cromwell Road was built in the 1970s. Slum clearance in the area was proposed as long ago as 1933, but new flats were not built in Hampden Road until 1975 and Pert Close, a large estate of 3-storey flats was erected c1970. The name of the nearby Freehold Community Centre is the only link with the early days of the development. Hollickwood Park is built on the former council refuse tip. Sydney Road School was built in 1906 to take infants from the nearby St Peter's School and by 1914 had accommodation for 299 pupils. By 1936 there were 524 places in a junior mixed and infant school. Renamed Hollickwood in 1938, it was demolished in 1974. Robert Paul bought land in Sydney Road in 1897 to build a film studio. He transferred his instrument workshop from Hatton Garden to Sydney Road in 1903 where he specialised in the manufacture of instruments such as thermometers. By then much extended, the factory closed in 1975. In 1920 the firm had become the Cambridge Instrument Company which, in 1974 was taken over by Brown Boveri, a Swiss firm. At its peak it employed about 750 people. Cambridge Close is built on the site and Robert Paul's house at no 49 now has a blue plaque. In 1894 Paul and his partner, Birt Acres, discovered that Edison had neglected to patent his kinoscope in England and set about making a machine to show 40-second films. Their first effort looked rather like the peep-show machines familiar on seaside piers. Together they made a motion picture camera which they used to record the Boat Race and the Derby – the 1895 race was shown at the Alhambra Music Hall within 24 hours of the event, when the audience cheered and the orchestra played 'God Bless the Prince of Wales'. Paul next turned his attention to trick photography. The film A Runaway Motor Car through Piccadilly Circus used the technique of turning the crank slowly and playing back at normal speed St Peter's Church began life in a hut and then in a corrugated-iron building. Work on a more permanent church was financed by the sale of St Peter-le-Poer in the City in 1909, when many items such as silver-gilt chalices, patens, flagons and alms dishes, the pulpit, bells, organ, font etc were transferred to the new building. the architect was W.D. Caroe (1857-1938), who also built the Working Men's College in Camden Town and St Luke's church in Finchley. The land to the west of Friern Barnet Lane formed the southernmost part of the Halliwick estate and was used by Muswell Hill Farm and Coppetts Farm in 1894. Development of this began in 1969. The Albion Estates Company developed Albion Road, George Crescent and Halliwick Road around 1899. (Finchley and Whetstone Past by John Heathfield. Historical Publications 2001)

By this time too the development of South Friern was beginning. The district, also known as the Freehold (probably from the name of the original developers, the Westminster Freehold Land Society), was never considered desirable. This is probably reflected in the large number of unbuilt plots still remaining in the 1890s. On the other hand, since the newcomers were poor there was a considerable degree of overcrowding. In 1867 seven occupants per house was considered a modest estimate and in 1883 there were 870 inhabitants in 174 houses. Many of the first occupants were workers employed in the building of Alexandra Palace, but although the Freehold lay conveniently close it was on the other side of the Parish boundary, and coping with its problems therefore fell to Friern Barnet. Until a Local Board was established in 1884 (to be succeeded by the Urban District Council in 1895) responsibility for at least some aspects of the physical as well as moral welfare lay with the parish, whose original church lay a good two miles away. St Peter's mission was founded in 1866 and used the Cromwell Road School premises until the building shown here opened in 1884. It was moved to the present site in 1904, although it was another five years before work on the permanent buildings began with the money from the sale of the redundant City church of St Peter-le-Poer. The school closed after Second World War bomb damage. The clergy had an uphill battle, but apparently remained optimistic. By 1869 'Besides the Sunday Evening Services, a night school is held twice a week during the winter, and a Mothers Meeting, Saving Fund, Clothing Fund etc, and occasional Penny Readings, have had a very beneficial effect in this once neglected neighbourhood.' Considerable thought went into mitigating the problems of poverty and marginalisation. In 1883 the parish magazine reported: 'It has been customary to make a difference between charges for a funeral with bearers and one with a hearse. This rule has been in practice sometimes pressed heavily upon those whose use of a hearse for the conveyance of their dead has been an indication not of competence, but of the distance of their home from the parish churchyard. The difficulty has been overcome by... (providing) a bier on wheels, which two men can easily manage... The only charge will be one shilling for cleansing and disinfecting after use.' From 1884 to 1903 the priest-in-charge was the distinguished ecclesiastical historian George Hennessy, best known as the author of the Novum Repertorium Ecclesiasticum Parochiale Londoninense, which provides lists of diocesan clergy from the earliest times up to 1898. His contributions to the parish magazine, if short, are well expressed. In 1890 he noted

'we have the gas lighted now in the Freehold so that people can see where they are going, and it is refreshing to note that the Local Board are bestowing some further attention upon us, as a man is now set to clean the paths, so that people may venture out a little more to attend their religion, without falling or stepping in the mud.'

Whatever its problems, the Freehold managed to attract some industry. Most notable was the pioneering film studio established in Sydney Road in 1897 by Robert Paul, where he also produced a galvanometer and a forerunner of the iron lung. Sydney Road's other claim to fame was its large bus garage, opened in 1931 (Pamela Taylor. Godfrey Old Ordnance Survey Map. Alexandra Park & South Friern 1894. Reprinted 1998)

Class must have played a considerable part in causing the first downmarket development to have occurred well away from Muswell Hill. This was the Freehold estate in Friern Barnet, laid out by 1863 and shown in its entirety, and not only distant from all existing settlements but also built upon lower land. Delightful as the Strawberry Vale and Bounds Green Brooks both were until the 1920s, when the North Circular was built along their course, the marsh symbols at the Hornsey Sewage Farm show why valleys were usually considered unhealthy, and indeed why development on the Albion Estates Company's adjacent Halliwick estate stalled at Halliwick Road. The Freehold seems to have been built by the Westminster Freehold Land Society (hence, probably, the name) to take advantage of the workers building Alexandra Palace. In some small compensation, Friern's long overdue sewage works opened on Tottenham Wood Farm land in 1883; like Finchley's, they were closed in 1963 when processing moved to Deepham's Works in Edmonton. Lack of sanitation was only one of the Freehold's early problems: in 1866 the roads, drains and water supply were all considered as bad as the moral condition of the newcomers. The small six-room houses, or rather the flats or rooms within them, were of course rented and the overcrowding extreme. By 1867 the first 130 houses contained some 1000 souls, and although conditions improved when the number of houses increased and the Place had been built (and then re-built), by 1887 the figures were still 174 for 870. This was also the year that Friern's selectively shockable parishoners were assured that St Peter's mission hall offered educational opportunities to the 'young roughs' who were gambling openly in the Freehold. The following year local government reform included the creation of wards, thus ensuring a somewhat division of resources. St Peter's mission and the associated Cromwell Road National School opened in the same premises in 1866. The school moved to Sydney Road in 1868, when it was renamed St Peter's but carried on receiving consistently bad reports both for educational standards and for overcrowding. In 1939 rebuilding was on the agenda but in fact after the school was bombed it was not re-opened. The mission opened in 1884 to the building shown here as St Peter's Mission Church and then in 1904 to temporary premises on a site acquired from the Albion Estates Company. Work on the permanent building for St Peter-le-Poer's started in 1909, after the sale of the redundant City church which also bequeathed its name and various high-quality furnishings. The Freehold attracted some industry, and the map shows two significant arrivals since 1894. The brush works in Roman Road are obvious but it is the unnamed complex between Sydney Road and Newton Avenue that represents one of the Freehold's main claims to enduring fame. Robert Paul (1869-1943), the father of the British Film Industry, had, (in a very brief partnership with Birt Acres) produced Britain's first moving film camera and film in 1895 and post-Acres, the widely shown Derby Day of 1896. Paul bought the Friern site in 1897 to build a factory and film studio and in the summer of 1898 made over 80 short dramatic films there. Several of the extant films from 1903-6 also feature the local streets. Despite all this, Paul always thought of himself primarily as an electrical engineer and, having moved his instrument works from Hatton Garden, also produced a galvanometer here in 1903. By 1911 he was disillusioned with film and closed down that side of his production before selling out entirely in 1912. The rest of his enterprise was carried on successfully; it amalgamated with Cambridge Scientific Instruments in 1920 and continued as a major local employer until a Swiss takeover and closure in the 1970s. Cambridge Gardens now marks the spot (Pamela Taylor. Godfrey Old Ordnance Survey Map. Alexandra Park & South Friern 19114. Reprinted September 2014)

"I write to protest at the proposal to transfer this part of Barnet to the London Borough of Haringey. I am a Senior Citizen and have spent my working and married life as a resident of Barnet. My two children went to school in Barnet, one of them subsequently became a teacher having benefited from Barnet's splendid education system. As a council tenant and widow I am content in my retirement with my flat and the service I receive from Barnet Council. This includes local chiropody treatment and the benefit of the local resident's hall which we worked hard to get. All my shopping is done locally and this has been made even easier since the Tesco store opened on the North Circular Road. The North Circular Road does not present a barrier to those of us who live here and I see no reason why there should be any change because one person has recommended it. Please leave me alone to get on with my life in the Borough I know. THE GRANGE, N20

History

24 Jul 1937. It was reported by the town planning committee that a plan submitted by Messrs J D Rawlins and Company for the development of part of the estate of "The Grange," Whetstone provided for the erection of nine houses on the frontage to Chandos Avenue. The area, stated the committee, was zoned in planning scheme No 1 for the erection of no more six houses to the acre, and the proposed nine houses would create a development of 7.08 to the acre, excluding a strip of land to the rear which the developers suggested should be included in the development. The committee were not prepared to include this land, having regard to the fact that it was not in the same ownership, and was not to become an open space in perpetuity. It was possible, however, that the land would be reserved as an open space and used as a garden in connection with the development of the rear land (Barnet Press 24 Jul 1937)

HOUSE NUMBERS by David Berguer When researching the history of an area old maps and street directories are a valuable source of information. However, one of the problems facing historians is the renumbering of streets, which became necessary as an area developed and new buildings were erected on what had formerly been vacant land. For example, in the 1937 Kelly's Directory of Finchley and Friern Barnet the building in High Road Whetstone, on the corner of Chandos Avenue, was numbered 14 Chandos Parade but by 1939 it had been renumbered 1370 High Road. In fact, the whole of the High Road had been renumbered, so it was a one-off solution to the problem. A more recent case was highlighted by Karl Ruge who sent us a copy of a letter he had received from Barnet Council in August 1966. This referred to the demolition of two large houses in Friern Barnet Lane between Park Way and The Ridgeway. The Borough Engineer and Surveyor explained the problem: "The numbering of new dwellings following the re-development of a site comprising more units than those which previously existed, does present some problems, particularly if re-numbering of other properties in the street is to be avoided. You may rest assured, however, that such a course is only adopted as a last resort, the usual method being to allocate a name to the new development, i.e. ".....Court" or ".....House", and to number the dwellings from No 1 onwards accordingly. This action, of course, cannot be taken until work has started, since it often occurs that there is more than one approval attached to a site involving varying numbers of units." As it turned out, a simpler solution was found. Twenty houses were eventually built on the site and the houses were numbered thus: Park Way south side (from Friern Barnet Lane) numbers 2H, 2G, 2E, 2D, 2C, 2B, 2A, Friern Barnet Lane (from north) 77A, 77, 75A, 75, 73A, 73, 71A, 71 The Ridgeway north side (from Friern Barnet Lane) 1E, 1D, 1C, 1B, 1A. THORNE VILLAS, N11
(see GLENTHORNE ROAD)

THURLESTONE AVENUE, N12 Planning applications up Jul 2021

(see also HALLIWICK MANOR ESTATE)

History

1930 Plan number 2986 submitted by Lord & Mellowdew Ltd for the development of the Halliwick Manor Estate, comprising the erection of 218 houses and 57 shops. At present the Manor Estate is within the boundary of Hornsey, and the urban districts of Finchley and Friern Barnet but under review the district boundaries are to be altered and it will then be in Finchley and Friern Barnet only. Hornsey plan allowed for road width of 36 feet with 20 feet allowed for carriageway, but Finchley and Friern Barnet would require 40 feet overall. The developers have expressed willingness to give such land as would be needed to widen Colney Hatch Lane to 60 feet and improve the crossing of the junction with Woodhouse Road. 5th April 1930 – permission given for houses and shops. Cinema projected for corner of Woodhouse Road and Colney Hatch Lane. Street names proposed by the developer – Woodleigh Avenue. Thurstone Avenue, Ferncroft Avenue, Lancaster Avenue. Committee would prefer Hollick Wood Avenue instead of Lancaster

Thurlestone Avenue appears in Kelly's Directory of Finchley for the first time in 1934

TORRINGTON PARK, N12 Surveyed 5 Dec 2008. Planning applications up Apr 2020

formerly Friern Park Road South c1866

History

South of Whetstone, in addition to Woodhouse Road and Summers Lane, roads on the lines of the later Torrington Park and Friary Roads were planned in the 1820s and had been laid out by 1863 as Friern Park North and Friern Park South. (Victoria County History page 7)

...A little further south Torrington Park and Friary Road were laid out on Thomas Bensley's former estate between Friern Barnet Lane and the Great North Road by 1865, where between 1866 and 1868 land was sold by H. D. Holden. (Victoria County History page 11)

There were apparently no dissenters in the 17th century and only short-lived congregations before the establishment in 1883-4 of the first surviving nonconformist church. Methodists had a small chapel in Colney Hatch Lane from 1836, with attendances of 25 in the morning and 38 in the evening on census Sunday 1851. They later worshipped at a boarding school at no 1 Torrington Park from 1852 to 1866, and in Friern Barnet Lane until c. 1889. (Victoria County History)

...and Torrington Court, in the town-house style, occupies a single plot in Torrington Park. (Victoria County History page 15)

The local board had a fire committee by 1889 but decided against a new station on grounds of expense. The new UDC took over the voluntary brigade and in 1899 formed a professional force, which in 1904 acquired one of the first motor-powered fire engines. A sub-station for North Finchley opened in 1890 at Tally Ho Corner, moved in 1902 to Torrington Park, and closed in 1930. (Victoria County History Finchley Page 81)

Torrington Park has been developed and redeveloped since 1872 (Around Whetstone & North Finchley by John Heathfield, page 131)

TOTTERIDGE & WHETSTONE STATION, N20

History

The station was opened by the Great Northern as Totteridge on 1 April 1872 and renamed Totteridge & Whetstone two years later. Services on the Northern Line were extended to High Barnet from East Finchley on 14 April 1940 (London Underground Stations by David Leboff. Ian Allan Publishing 1994)

21 Jun 1965. London Transport had proposed to increase the number of car parking spaces from 45 to 128 (Barnet Council Minutes 21 Jun 1965)

In 1982 single line working was introduced due to the slippage of an embankment. It was eight weeks before normal working was resumed and platform and buildings were out of action for a full year (Northern Line video)

In 1912 there were 44 trains an hour on the Hampstead tube, a record for a British railway. Today there are 24 per hour on the Northern Line

TOTTERIDGE LANE, N20 Planning application up to May 2018

No 1. Investigations into the Dissenter's Burial ground in Totteridge Lane, some years ago, revealed the fact that the Dissenters originally held their services in an old barn adjacent to the High Road. An elderly member of the Whetstone United Reformed Church told the minister that she remembered grave stones in this field when she was a small girl although the barn had long since disappeared. When the premises of James and Sons, builders, at No 1 Totteridge Lane was sold for redevelopment, careful site-watching was undertaken, but no evidence of graves was uncovered. It is, of course, possible that the graves had been removed before the original development took place (HADAS Newsletter March 1982)

No 1 (Paulston House). 3 Aug 2017. Submission of details of conditions 7 ,8 ,9 and 10a (Noise) pursuant to planning permission 17/2770/FUL dated 27/6/17 (Barnet Council 17/5045/CON)

No 1 (Paulston House). 1 Sep 2017. Planning application for Variation of Condition 4 (Hours of Use) of planning permission 17/2770/FUL dated 27/6/17 for Change of Use of and enclosure of undercroft car park to flexible use as Class B1 Office or D2 gym (incorporating ancillary juice bar). Variation to include extension of these opening hours by 1 hour in the morning. This is due to the nature of the proposed development and the hours they tend to be in use. However, the use permitted shall not be open to members of the public before 6am or after 10pm. Reason: to safeguard the amenities of occupiers of adjoining residential properties (Barnet Council 17/5579/S73)

No 1. 10 Apr 2018. Planning application for Installation of 1 internally illuminated and 2 externally illuminated fascia signs (Barnet Council 18/2190/ADV)

Nos 1 - 3. 16 Oct 2017. Planning application for single storey front extension to form entrance (Barnet Council 17/6468/FUL)

Nos 1 – 3. 18 May 2018. Planning application for change of use of existing Flat 1 from (C3) to (B1a office) (Barnet Council 18/2828/FUL)

TRIUMPH PUB, SUMMERS LANE, N12 Planning applications up to Mar 2011

The Triumph, Friern Barnet, must be one of the few local pubs which can claim to have held the licence in the family for almost the whole of the century. It was in 1907 that Mr Albert Pope and his wife came here and their son, Harold Pope, is still running The Triumph. The origin of the name is equally interesting: according to the annals of Friern Hospital, the name goes back to the opening of the old Colney Hatch Asylum in 1851. On their way to perform the opening ceremony, Queen Victoria and Prince Albert passed under a triumphal arch of flowers, and so the nearby inn was renamed The Triumph. (NB the foundation stone was laid on 8 May 1849 by the Prince Consort. (Psychiatry for the Poor by Richard Hunter and Ida Macalpine 1974. page 24). Prior to this it was the Middlesex Arms. The earliest known history of the site was when it was part of Finchley Common, part of it being enclosed in 1816 and allotted to an ex-Lord Mayor of London, Sir William Curtis. The land then passed on to a fellow banker, Richard Dawn, and thence to his ex-butler, Henry Dunger of Colney Hatch, who was the first man to build a cottage and brewhouse there. Even to this day, there are those who remember this slice of land as Dunger Place, although Dunger himself later lived in Colney Hatch Lane. A beer seller, Robert Jarvis, actually lived at Dunger Place in the late 1860s. The only name available for the place is the Flower Pot Brewery which existed in this area in 1839. Part of the history of The Triumph, particularly in the last half of the 19th century, is unknown but the present licensee, Harold Pope has hanging in his bar, three pictures of The Triumph taken this century. The pub was rebuilt in 1904 and various extensions added over the years, but the main building is unchanged. Apart from a spell during the war, Mr Pope has been associated with The Triumph since the 1920s, taking over on the death of his father in 1951. Still to be seen beneath the saloon bar window is a brick with his initials, placed there in 1927. Nowadays his wife, Hazel, and his married daughter, Susan, help him in the bar and in serving snacks, carrying on the family tradition (unknown and undated newspaper cutting. A similar, but abbreviated, article appeared in Barnet Press Series on 4 Aug 1972. Both extracts held in Barnet Local Studies and Archives. Ref L15868/179)

According to Norfolk County Record Office there were several Dungers in Norwich about 1840 - 70. They were land and property owners, brewers and farmers (barley?) There was a pub called The Triumph in Norwich about 1850-60 – no details of who owned it (John Heathfield FB&DLHS)
